

Explanations:

This burndown chart reflects steady progress through our stories near the end of the sprint. This makes sense, as many of us were occupied with assignments or midterm prep from other courses for up to two weeks into the sprint. The small increase in remaining work around Feb 24 is due to a scope change on one of the stories.

Velocity:

The actual velocity is a bit different (lower) from the planned velocity as we were unable to finish some stories/tasks. The velocity was much better than the previous sprint as we now completed stories at a more consistent rate.